

Family and Consumer Sciences Assessments (FCSA)

Fashion Design Study Guide

- What colors make a form seem smaller?
- The textile industry is dominated by corporations that handle all processes, from fiber production to sales.
- What are composite garments?
- Couture fashion houses and their fashion show reveals
- Tent dress characteristics
- Clothing projects the wearer's talents and goals.
- What is an inventory?
- A wale in a woven fabric is what?
- What is a composite-made garment?
- The shape of apparel line contains a group of garments that are similar in some way.
- What are odd lots?
- What do straight lines suggest?
- Handbag size should be scaled to body size.
- What are fashion leaders?
- Various types of sleeves and their characteristics
- What are wholesalers?
- The textile industry doesn't include the firms that do the designing and factory construction of garments.
- The timeline of the fashion industry.
- What is a shuttle in designing?
- How are ply yarns formed?
- Compared with an even number of parts, an odd number of parts is more interesting.
- Norfolk, safari, and bolero are all styles of what type of garment?
- Feet that are wide look best in shoes that are simple and of one color.
- A durable fabric finish has what characteristics?
- What was the first commercially designed fabric?
- What are guide sheets?

Family and Consumer Sciences Assessments (FCSA)

Fashion Design Study Guide

- What is R and D?
- Define mark up.
- What is an invoice?
- What are couturiers?
- The more interesting a garments texture, the simpler its line should be.
- People should plan their wardrobes around what?
- People should be aware of their activities, so their appeal is geared through their lifestyles.
- Different styles of dresses, blouses, and pants
- Characteristics NOT common in silk fabrics

